BY REV. RALPH HOYT. In a valley that I know-Happy scene! There are merdows aloping low, There the fairest flowers blow, All serene; But the sweetest thing to see If you ask the dripping tree, Or the harvest hopping swain,

Is the rain ... Ah, the dwellers of the town, How they sigh, How ungratefully they frown When the cloud-king shakes his crown, And the pearls come pouring down From the aky !

They descry no charm at all Where the sparkling jewels fall, And each moment of the shower, Seems an hour. Yet there's something very sweet

In the sight, When the crystal currents meet, In the dry and dusty street, And they wrestle with the heat, In their might ! While they seem to hold a talk With the stones along the walk, And remind them of the rule, To " keep cool !"

But in that quiet dell, Ever fair! Still the Lord doeth all things well, When his clouds with blessings swell And they brake a brimming shell mon On the air ; There the shower hath its charms, Sweet and welcome to the farms, As they listen to its voice, And rejeice!
